Violence Against Women

More than 500,000 reported incidents of domestic violence and over 200,000 reported tapes were committed in the United States in 2004. Approximately one-third of women who are murdered each year are killed by their current or former husband or partner. In the 2002 Budget, the President requested and secured a $100 million increase in funding for Violence Against Women Act (VAWA) programs and has continued to provide similar levels of funding in every Budget since then. In an effort to combat the problem, the Administration has obtained over $2.2 billion in funding since 2001 for programs that combat violence against women. The budget requests$369 million for VAWA programs that target domestic violence and strengthen services for victims and their dependents, and hold offenders accountable. Not only do VAWA funded programs provide training and support to local law enforcement, but VAWA programs also provide services and support to hundred of thousands of victims each year. VAWA programs are funded primarily through DOJ's Office on Violence Against Women. For more information please go to http://www.4woman.gov/violence/
